To Whom This May Concern,

On Saturday, May 3, 2017, I was at the Goldstein Bat Mitzvah at the Loews Hotel, Santa Monica, and witnessed the accident involving Irene Levy. As Irene was walking towards a table in the back of the room (back being closest to the entrance doors), a waiter was walking swiftly in the opposite direction with his tray. The two crossed paths and the waiter walked directly into Irene's side, and she went tumbling over. She fell pretty hard onto her right leg / hip area and was unable to get up. At that point other guests and staff also saw her lying on the floor and were trying to assist. It was clear Irene couldn't apply any pressure to her leg and had to be placed in a chair with some ice. She was eventually taken out of the party for further medical attention. Please feel free to contact me with any questions.
